

Enterococcus Monitoring Results: Hudson River Watershed Snapshot

Enterococcus is an indicator of fecal contamination. Bars show the geometric mean, a weighted average, of all non-tidal samples. Results are from 14-937 samples collected May-October, 2010-2018. Date ranges vary by watershed. Samples were collected and processed by a network of community scientists and labs.

